

British Columbia’s Construction Industry Celebrates Construction & Skilled Trades Month

This month, and every month, we celebrate BC’s builders who keep our province growing strong.

VICTORIA, BC (April 1, 2025) — April is Construction & Skilled Trades Month in BC. Officially proclaimed by the BC provincial government and now in its 8th year, Construction Month is a time when British Columbia’s construction industry celebrates the hard work and commitment of the 28,000+ businesses and 250,000+ British Columbians who work tirelessly in every community, ensuring our province is built strong and built right. This month is an opportunity to recognize their achievements, starting with the BCCA Builders Code 2025 Champion Award Winners, recognized for making a positive difference in advancing the culture of BC’s construction industry.

“We want to extend a special thank you to all the hard-working individuals who make BC’s construction industry the powerhouse it is,” said Chris Atchison, President of the British Columbia Construction Association (BCCA). “This month, and every month, we celebrate the incredible efforts of the businesses and builders who make the development and growth of our province possible.”

Construction & Skilled Trades Month is truly a time to acknowledge the many valued contributions of those who build BC. Their dedication and expertise keep our province growing. To support them, we must ensure they have the tools to succeed—by investing in infrastructure, modernizing policies, and passing Prompt Payment legislation. When we make it easier to build, we honour the contributions of construction workers and strengthen BC’s future.

“BCCA is committed to continuing to advocate for this sector and calling on the provincial government to support construction across BC,” added Atchison, “We encourage the provincial government to celebrate Construction & Skilled Trades Month by taking the necessary actions to stand up for this industry.”

Alongside our regional partners—the Northern Regional Construction Association, Southern Interior Construction Association, Vancouver Island Construction Association, and the Vancouver Regional Construction Association—BCCA stands strong for BC’s builders. For those looking to join in showing their support for construction, check out construction4cdns.ca. Together, we can ensure that the industry remains strong, resilient, and capable of meeting the demands of our growing province.
